P R E F A C E.

IN publishing this work, my object is to remove the difficulties which readers of the Puráns and other ancient works of Hindu and Buddhist literature generally feel in identifying ancient places they come across. Apart from the natural curiosity which every one feels to know the modern names of ancient places, the knowledge imparts a peculiar interest and zest to the perusal of ancient Hindu works. For the compilation of this work, I have been indebted to the works of such authorities as General Cunningham, Dr. Führer, Fergusson, Beal, Wilson, Hunter and others; also to the Archæological Reports, the Asiatic Researches and the Journals of the Asiatic Society of Bengal. I have also derived my information from the accounts of pilgrims where they have generally agreed, and from local traditions. Notwithstanding the impetus that has been given of late to archæological inquiry, there are many ancient places which have not yet been identified. The change in several names that has been brought about by flux of time owing to the subversion of states and kingdoms, and the changes in the course of rivers, defies the ingenuity of archæologists to identify them. The present book, however, does not mean to discuss the merits of the identifications, but is only intended to be an alphabetical collection of names of such ancient places in India as have been identified with tolerable certainty.

With regard to the arrangement of the names in this work, I shall only observe that, for facility of finding them out, I have followed the system observed in English lexicography, except with regard to the a (अ) or á (आ) series of initial letters. I have placed the á (आ) series after the a (अ) series have been exhausted, as is done in the Abhidhāns. If this little Geographical Dictionary can prove itself of any use or interest to its readers, my labours will be amply rewarded.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Major F. P. Maynard, M.B., I.M.S., for kindly looking through the final proofs for me.

DWÁRAKESI ...	Same as Dwárikeswari .
DWÁRÁVATI ...	1. Dwarka in Guzerát. Krishna made it his capital after his flight from Mathura. 2. Siam (Phayre).
DWÁRIKÁ ...	Dwarka in Guzerát.
DWÁRIKESWARI	The river Dalkisor near Bishnupur in Bengal, one of the branches of the Rup-náráyana .

E

EKACHAKRÁ ...	Arrah, according to Cunningham (Arch. Report , 1871-72, Vol. III). But this identification is very doubtful. Dr. Führer has identified it with Chakarnagar, sixteen miles south-west of Itawah.
EKÁMRAKÁNANA	Bhuvaneswara in Orissa (see Harakshetra).

G

GAHALATA ...	Ghilghit (McCrindle).
GANDAKI ...	The river Gandak. It rises in the Sapta Gandaki or Dhawalagiri range of the Himalaya, which is the southern boundary of Central Thibet, and enters the plains at a spot called Tribeni Ghát . The source of the river is not far from Sálagrāma, which was the hermitage of Bharata and Pulaha. The temple of Muktinátha (an image of Náráyana) s

GANDHA-HASTI STUPA	... Bakraur on the Phalgu, opposite to Buddha-Gayá, visited by Hiuen Tsiang.
GANDHAMÁDANA	A part of the Rudra Himalaya. The range of Gandhamádana commences at a short distance to the north-east of Badarikásrama.
GANDHARAVA- DESA	.. Gándhára, which is evidently a corruption of Gandharáva-desá (see Gándhára).
GANGÁ	... The Ganges.
GANGÁDWÁRA	.. Haridwar (see Máyápurī).
GANGOTRI	... A spot in the Rudra-Himalaya, in Gurwal, supposed by the ancient Hindus to have been the source of the Ganges, though it has been traced further north by Captain Hodgson (Asiatic Researches , Vol. XIV). There is a temple of Gangá Devi. One kos from Gangotri and two kos from Meani-ki-Gadh, there is a spot called Patangni, which is noted as the place where the five Pándavas remained for twelve years worshipping Mahádeo. After that period they left this place and ascended Swargarohini, a peak of the sacred hill, whence the Ganges flows : there four of the brothers died. The Rudra-Himalaya has five principal peaks called Rudra-Himalaya (the eastern peak), Burrampoori, Bissenpoori, Oodgurrikanta, and Swargarohini (the western and nearest peak). These form a sort of semi-circular hollow of very considerable extent filled with eternal snow, from the gradual dissolution of the lower parts of which the principal part of the stream is generated (Fraser's Himala Mountains). See Sumeru-pārvata.

GARGA-ĀSRAMA The reputed site of the hermitage of Rishi Garga is situated in the Rai Bareli district, opposite to Āsni, across the Ganges GARJAPURA Ghazipur. This part of the country was visited by Fa Hian in the fifth century. Cunningham infers the ancient name of Garjapura from the modern name of Ghazipur.

GAURA ... See Goura.

GAUTAMA-
ĀSRAMA ... 1. Ahalyāsthāna in the village of Ahiari, pargana Jarail, twenty-four miles to the south-west of Janakpur in Tirhut.
2. Godná or Revelganj near Chhapra.
3. Āhiroli near Buxar. The Rāmāyana, however, places the hermitage of the Rishi Gautama near Janakpur.

GAUTAMI .. The river Godāvāri.

GAYASIRSHA 1. Gayá. 2. The mount Gayasirsha, called Gayasisa in the Buddhist annals, is the Brahmayoni hill in Gayá, where

Buddha preached his "burning" sermon called the Sermon of the Mount (Monier Williams' Buddhism)

GAYÁ

... It is situated between the Rámsilá hill on the north and the Brahmayoni hill on the south, on the bank of the river Phalgu. The town is composed of the modern town of Shahebganj on the northern side, and the ancient town of Gayá on the southern side. In the southern portion of the town is situated the celebrated temple of Vishnupada, which was erected some two hundred years ago by Ahalyá-bái, the daughter-in-law of Mulhar Rao Holkar of Indore, on the site of a more ancient temple. The temple of Mangalá-Gouri, one of the 52 Pithas, where Sati's breast is said to have fallen, is situated on a spur of the Brahmayoni range called the Bháshnáth. Buddha-Gayá (see Uravilwa is six miles to the south of Gayá.

GAYÁNÁBHI

... Jájpur in Orissa. Gayásura, a demon who was overthrown by Vishnu, was of such a bulky stature that when stretched on the ground his head rested at Gayá, his navel at Jájpur, and his feet at a place near Rajmahendri.

GÁDHIPURA

... Kánouj. It was the capital of Gádhi Rájá, the father of Rishi Viswámitra.

GÁLAVA-ÁSRAMA

The hermitage of Rishi Gálava, three miles from Jeypur

GÁNDHÁRA	... The country of Gándhára lies along the Kábul river between the Khoaspes (Kunar) and the Indus. Its capital was Purushapura, now called Peshawur (Beal). Ptolemy makes the Indus the eastern boundary of the Gandari. It is the Kiantolo of Hiuen Tsiang, the Kundara Gandaridæ of Strabo and other ancient Greek geographers. In the Ayin Akbari it forms the district of Pukely, lying between Kásmir and Attock (J. A. S. B., Vol. XV). Gándhára comprised the modern districts of Peshawur and Hoti Murdan, or what is called the Eusofzai country, where discoveries were made of excellent Buddhist architecture and sculptures of the time of Kaniksha, i.e., of the first century of the Christian era, at Ranigat, Sanghao and Nuttu, through the labours of Major Cole (Memorandum of Ancient Monuments in Eusofzai). Pushkarávati or Pushkalávati (Pukely) was its ancient capital, which the Rámáyana placed in Gandharva-desa. Gándhára of the Mahábhárat and the Buddhist period, therefore, is the corruption of Gandharva-desa of Válmiki.
GEHAMURA	... Gahmar (E. I. Railway) in the district of Ghazipur. It was the abode of Mura, a daitya, who was killed by Krishna (Führer).
GIRINAGARA	.. Girnár, one of the hills known by the name of Junágar hills, at a very little distance from the town of Junágar, sacred to the Jains as containing the temples of Nemináth and Páraswanáth. It was the hermitage of Rishi Dattátreya.

GIRIVRAJAPURA

Rájgir in Behar, the ancient capital of Magadha, where Jarásandha's palace was situated. It is surrounded by five hills called in the Mahábhárat Vaihára, Varáha, Vrishabha, Rishi-giri, and Chaityaka, but they are now called Baibhár-giri, Vipula-giri, Ratna-giri, Udaya-giri, and Sona-giri. Vaihára has been identified with Baibhár-giri, Rishi-giri with Ratna-giri, and Chaityaka with Vipula-giri. Rangbhum in Jarásandha's fort is pointed out as the spot where Bhima killed Jarásandha. The first Buddhist Synod was held in 477 B. C. on the southern slope of the Baibhár hill in front of the Son-bhándár cave formerly called the Sattapanni cave, where Buddha used to live. Just behind the Baithak of Jarásandha there is another cave called the Pippali cave, where Buddha used to meditate after his meals. Buddha resided in a cave of the Pándava-giri, which is a spur of the Ratna-giri on the eastern side of the town, when for the first time he came to Rájagriha.

GIRIYEK

... An ancient Buddhist village on the Panchána river, on the southern border of the district of Patna.

GODÁVARI

... The river Godávári has got its source in the Brahma-giri mountain, situated on the side of a village called Tryam-vaka, which is twenty miles from Nasik. Some suppose that the river has got its source in the neighbouring mountain called Jatáphatká. In Tryamvaka there is a tank called Kusávartha, underneath which the Godávari is said to flow after issuing from the mountain. Every twelfth year, pilgrims from all parts of India resort to this village for the purpose of bathing in this sacred tank and worshipping the Mahádeo called Tryamvakeswara.

GOKARNA	Gendia, a town in the province of North Canara, thirty miles from Goa (Wilford). It is a celebrated place of pilgrimage. It contains the temple of Mahabaleswara. It is thirty miles south of Sedasheogar, which is three miles south of Goa. (Newbold, J. A. S. B. , Vol. XIV, p. 497).
GOMANTA-GIRI	An isolated mountain on the northern side of the Western Ghâts, where Krishna and Balaráma defeated Jarásandha (Harivansa).
GOMATI	..	1. The river Gumti in Oudh. 2. The river Godávari.
GOMUKHI	...	Fifteen miles north of Gangotri: a celebrated place of pilgrimage.
GONARDDA	..	The Panjab, from Gonardda, king of Kásmir, who conquered it.
GOPAKAVANA	...	Goa.
GOPRATÁRA	...	Guptára, a place of pilgrimage on the bank of the Saraju at Fyzabad, where Ráma is said to have died.

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

- GOURA ... 1. The whole of Bengal was so denominated from its capital of the same name, the ruins of which lie near Malda at a distance of about ten miles (see Lakshmanāvatī). 2. Uttara Kosala, the capital of which was Srāvastī, was also called Goura. Gondá, a sub-division of Uttara Kosala, forty-two miles south of Srāvastī, is evidently a corruption of Goura. The traditions respecting the famous tooth-brush tree (danta-dhāvana) of Buddha still exist at Gondá (Führer).
- GOURI ... A tributary of the Kabul river.
- GOURIKUNDA ... A holy place at a very short distance from Gangotri, where the Kedar-Gangá debouches into the Bhágirathi (Fraser's Himala Mountains).
- GOVA-RÁSHTRA ... Goa.
- GRIDHRAKUTA It is a part of Saila-giri,—the Vulture peak of Fa Hian and Hiuen Tsiang. It lies two miles and-a-half to the south-east of new Rájgir and north-east of old Rájgir. Buddha performed here austerities for some time after leaving the Pándava-giri cave, and in his subsequent sojourn, he delivered here many of his excellent sutras.
- GUNAMATI-VIHÁRA ... The Gunamati monastery, which was visited by Hiuen Tsiang, was situated on the Kunwa hill at Dharáwat in the sub-division of Jahanabad in the district of Gaya. The twelve-armed statue of Bhairab at that place is really an ancient Buddhist statue of Avalokiteswara (Grierson).

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
GURJARA	... Guzerát. In the seventh century, at the time of Hiuen Tsiang, the name was not extended to the peninsula of Guzerát, which was then known only by the name of Sauráshtra. The modern district of Marwar was then known by the name of Gurjara.

H

HAIHAYA	... Khandesh, parts of Aurangabad and South Malwa. It was the kingdom of Kárttaviryárjuna, who was killed by Parasuráma. Its capital was Máhishmati, now called Maheswara or Chuli-Maheswara.
HAIMAVATI	... Same as Rishikulyá .
HARAKSHETRA...	Bhuvaneswara in Orissa. It was the site of a capital city founded by Rájá Yayáti Kesari, who reigned in Orissa in the latter part of the fifth century. The Kesari dynasty consisted of forty-three princes, who ruled over Orissa from 474 to 1132 A. D., after the Yavanas (Hunter's Orissa).
HASTINÁPURA ...	The capital of the Kurus, north-east of Delhi, entirely diluviated by the river Ganges. It was situated twenty-two miles north-east of Mirat and south-west of Bijnor, on the right bank of the Ganges. Nichakshu, the grandson of Janmejaya of the Mahábhárat, removed his capital to Kausámbi after the destruction of Hastinápura (Vishnu-Purána)

HÁRITA-ÁSRAMA	Ekalinga, six miles north of Udaipur in Rajputana (Tod).
HÁTAKA	... Undes or Hundes, where the lake Má nas-sarovara is situated.
HEMAKUTA	.. The Ratna-giri hill, one of the five hills of Rájgir, in the district of Patna.
HIMAVANTA	... Thibet.
HIMÁDRI	... The Himalaya mountains.
HINGULÁ	... Hinglaj, situated at the extremity of the range of mountains in Baluchistan called by the name of Hingulá, about a day's journey from the sea-coast. The Aghor or Hingulá river passes by its side. It is one of the 52 Pithas or places celebrated as the spots on which the dis-severed limbs of Sati were scattered. The temple of Durgá is known here by the name of Mahámáyá or Kottari.
HIRAMBA	... Cachar.
HIRANYABÁHU	... The river Sone, the Erannoboas of the Greeks.
HIRANYA- PARVATA	... Monghir (see Mudgala-giri).
HIRANYAVATI	... The little Gandak; same as Ajitavati .
HLÁDINI The river Brahmaputra.
HUPIAN The capital of Parsusthána, the country of the Parsus, a warlike tribe mentioned by Pánini. Hupian is the present Opian, a little to the north of Charikar at the entrance of a pass over the north-east end of the Pamghan range (Beal).

IKSHUMATI ...	The river Káli-nadi in Rohilkhand.
ILBALA	Ellora near Daulatabad, in Central India. Rishi Agastya is said to have killed the Daityas Ilbal and his brother Vátápi at this place while on his way to the south (N. C. Das's Ancient Geography of Asia).
INDRAPRASTHA	Old Delhi. The city of Indraprastha was built upon the banks of the Jamuná, between the more modern Kotila of Firoz Shah and Humayun's tomb, about two miles south of modern Delhi. The river has now shifted its course more than a mile eastwards. The Nigambod Ghât is believed to have formed a part of the ancient capital. Its name, however, is preserved in that of Indrapat, one of the popular names for the fort of the Purána Kilá , which is still pointed out as the fort of Yudishthira and his brothers (Panjab Gazetteer). The fort was repaired by Humayun, which he called Dinpánná Indraprastha was the capital of Yudishthira (Mahábhárat).
INDRASILA	The Giryek hill to the north-east of Gaya. This was famous among the Buddhists as the spot where Sákya is said to have propounded the greater part of Prajñá-Parámita.

J

JAHNU-ÁSRAMA	The hermitage of Jahnu Muni is at Sultanganj (E. I. Railway) on the west of Bhagalpur. The temple of Gaibináth Mahádeo, which is on the site of the hermitage of Jahnu Muni, is situated on a rock which comes out from the bed of the Ganges. The river (Gangá) on her way to the ocean, was gulped down at a draught by the Muni when interrupted in his meditation by the rush of the waters, and he again let her out by making an incision in his thigh when interceded by Bhagiratha : hence the Ganges is called Jáhnavi. It is the Zanghera of Martin (Indian Empire).
JAJÁTIPURA ...	Jajpur (see Yajñapura .)
JAMADAGNI- ÁSRAMA ...	Zamánia, in the district of Ghazipur : the hermitage of Rishi Jamadagni.
JAMBUDWIPA ...	India.
JANASTHÁNA ...	Aurangabad.
JÁVALI-PATTANA	Jabbalpur.
JETAVANA- VIHÁRA ...	Joginibhariya mound, one mile to the south of Srávasti. Buddha resided and preached here for some time.

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

- JHÁRAKHANDA Chota Nagpur: Kokra of the Mahomedan historians.
- JIRNANAGARA ... Jooner in the district of Poonah.
- JWÁLÁMUKHI ... A celebrated place of pilgrimage near Kangra, being one of the 52 Pithas where Sati's tongue is said to have fallen. The town is thus described by W. H. Parish in J. A. S. B., Vol. XVIII: "The town of Jwálámukhi is large and straggling, and is built at the base of the western slope of the Jwálámukhi or Chungar-ki-dhar. The town with the wooded slopes of Chungar forming the background, and the valley spread out before it, has a very picturesque appearance from a distance. There is nothing interesting, however, about the town, it being filthily dirty and badly built. Even the celebrated temple itself is not free from its share of all manner of filth. It possesses no architectural beauty, nor anything worthy of notice, except the natural jets of gas." The temple contains the image of Ambiká or Máteswari.

abode of Mahádeva and Párvati. "In picturesque beauty," says H. Strachey, "Kailás far surpasses the big Gurla or any other of the Indian Himalaya that I have seen : it is full of majesty,—a king of mountains." Through the ravines on either side of the mountain is the passage by which the pilgrims perform their perambulation. The Kiunlun range. The Mahábhárat includes the Choor mountain between the Sutlej and Jamuná rivers in the Kailás range.

KAJINGHARA ... Same as Kajughira.

KAJUGHIRA ... Kajeri, ninety-two miles from Champá (Beal). Cunningham identifies it with Kankjol, sixty-seven miles to the east of Champá or Bhagalpur. Kajughira is a contraction of Kubjagriha.

KAKSHIVATA .. The Rajmahal hills.

KALINDA-DESA A mountainous country situated in the Bándara-pucínchha range of the Himalaya, where the Jamuná has got its source : hence the river is called Kálindi.

KALINGA ... A country lying on the south of Orissa and north of Drávida on the border of the sea. According to Cunningham, it was between the Godávari river on the south-west and the Gaolya branch of the Indrávati river on the north-west. Its chief towns were Manipura and Rájamahendri. At the time of the Mahábhárata, a large portion of Orissa was included in Kalinga, its northern boundary being the river Baitarani

KALYÁNA	Kaliani in the province of Bombay. It was the capital of the Chálukyas in the sixth century. Vijnáneswara, the author of the Mitákshará , was born at this place.
KAMALÁNKA ...	Comillah : it was the capital of Tipará in the sixth century.
KAMPILYA ..	Kampil, twenty-eight miles north-east of Fathgarh in the Farrakhabad district. It was the capital of Rájá Drupada, who was king of South Panchála, and the scene of Draupadi's Sayambara . Drupad's palace is pointed out as the most easterly of the isolated mounds on the bank of the Bur-Gangá. A writer in the Tattwabodhini Patriká identified it with Doarháttá, ten miles east from the bank of the Rám-gangá. But its identification with Kampil by Cunningham and Führer appears to be the more reasonable and correct.
KANAKHALA ...	Hardwar was once called by this name. It is now a small village, two miles to the east of Hardwar (see Máyápurí).
KANIKSHAPURA	Kanikhpur or Kámpur, ten miles to the south of Srinagar. It was founded by Kaniksha, king of Kásmir, who in 78 A. D. convened the last Buddhist synod, which gave rise to the Saka era.
KANSÁVATI ...	The river Kasai in Bengal.
KANWA-ÁSRAMA	Bijnor : it was the hermitage of Kanwa Muni, who adopted the celebrated Sakuntalá as his daughter.
KNYÁ-TIRTHA ...	In Kurukshetra.

KAPILADHÁRÁ ...

1. Twenty-four miles to the south-west of Nasik: it was the hermitage of Kapila. 2. The first fall of the river Nerbuda from the Amarakantaka mountains.

KAPILAVASTU ...

The birth-place of Buddha. It has been identified by Carlleyle with Bhuila in the north-western part of the Basti district, about twenty-five miles north-east from Fyzabad. He places the country of Kapilavastu between the Ghagra and the Gandak, from Fyzabad to the confluence of these rivers. Cunningham identifies it with Nagarkhas on the eastern bank of the Chando Tál, near a large stream named Kohána, a tributary of the Rapti, and in the northern division of Oudh beyond the Ghagra river; and he supposes that Mokson is the site of the Lumbini garden, where Buddha was born. But the question has been set at rest by the recent exploration of Dr. Führer on the suggestion of Dr. Waddell. It has been discovered that Kapilavastu lies in the immediate neighbourhood of the Nepalese village Nigliva, north of Gorakhpur, situated in the Nepalese Terai, thirty-eight miles north-west of the Uska Station of Bengal and North-Western Railway. The Lumbini garden has been identified with the village Paderia, two miles north of Bhagavanpur. The ruins of Kapilavastu lie eight miles north-west of Paderia. Buddha was born in 557 B.C., and he died in 477 B. C.

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
KAPISÁ	... 1. Kushán, ten miles west of Opian, on the declivity of the Hindu Kush. Julien supposes the district to have occupied the Panjshir and Tagao valleys in the north border of Kohistan (Beal). 2. The river Suvarnarekhá in Orissa.
KAPITHA	... Identified by Cunningham with Sankisa or Sánkásya, forty miles south-east of Atranji .see Sánkásya).
KAPIVATI Bhaigu, a branch of the Ramaganga (N. C. Das).
KARAKALLA	.. Karáchi in Scind : Krokala of Megasthenes.
KARAVIRAPURA.	A town situated on the north of the Western Ghâts near Jooner, on the bank of the Vená, a branch of the Krishná, where Krishna met Parasuráma and killed its king named Srigála (Harivansa).
KARATOYÁ	... A sacred river which flows through the districts of Rungpur and Dinajpur. It formed the boundary between the kingdoms of Bengal and Kamrupa at the time of the Mahábhárat (see Sadànirā).
KARDDAMA- ÁSARMA	... Sitpur (Siddhapur) in Guzerát, the hermitage of Rishi Karddama and birth-place of Kapila.
KARKOTAKA- NAGARA Karra, forty-one miles north-west of Allahabad. It is one of the 52 Pithas where Sati's hand is said to have fallen (Führer).

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

- KARMANÁŚÁ The cursed river, the water of which is considered by the Hindus to be polluted, being associated with the sins of Trisanku, the protégé of Rishi Viswámitra. The river is on the western limit of the district of Shahabad, and forms the boundary of Behar and the North-Western Provinces. It issues from a spring situated in a village called Sarodak (Hunter's Statistical Account of Bengal, Vol. XII, p. 164).
- KARNAPURA Bhagalpur.
- KARNA-SUVARNA Kánsóná, in the district of Murshidabad, the former capital of Bengal at the time of Ádisura, who was identical with Vijaya Sena of the inscriptions. It was at the request of Ádisura that Bira Sinha, king of Kanouj, sent five Bráhmans, Bhattanáráyana and others, to Bengal in the latter part of the tenth century to perform his sacrifice according to the Vedas. Bhattanáráyana, the author of the drama Veni-Samhára, is considered by some to have flourished in the court of Dharma Pála of the Pála dynasty. Even the name of Kánsóná has become antiquated, and the town is now known by the name of Rángámáti. It is situated on the right bank of the Bhágirathi, four miles below Berhampur. Captain Laird says that Rángámáti was anciently called Kánsónápuri, and the remains of the greater part of the palace with its gate and towers are distinctly traceable, although the site is now under cultivation (J. A. S. B., Vol. XXII, p. 281).

KÁLIGHÁT	... Near Calcutta. It is one of the 52 Pithas, where the four toes of Sati's right foot are said to have fallen. The name of Calcutta is derived from Kálighát.
KÁLINDI	... The river Jamuna.
KÁMA-ÁSRAMA Káron, eight miles to the north of Korantedi in the district of Balia. Mahádeva is said to have destroyed Madana, the god of Love, at this place with the fire of his third eye in the forehead (Rámáyana). It was situated at the confluence of the Saraju (Ghágra) and the Ganges, but the Saraju has now receded far to the east of this place, and joins the Ganges near Revel-ganj in Saran. The place contains a temple of Kámeswarnáth or Kauleswaranáth Mahádeo.
KÁMARUPA	... 1. It extended from the Karatoya river to the eastward, and included Manipur, Jayntiya, Kachhar, West Assam, and parts of Mymensingh and Sylhet. The modern district extends from Goalpara to Gauhatti. Its capital is called in the Puráns Prágjyotisha (Wilson). Assam 2. Kámakhyá: it is one of the 52 Pithas containing the temple of the celebrated Kámakhyá Devi.
KÁMBOJA Afghanistan: Kaofu (Kambu) of Hiuen Tsiang. The name of Afghan, however, has been derived from Aswakán (McCrindle).

KÁNCHIPURA ... Conjeveram, the capital of Dravida (Chola). The southern portion of the town is called Vishnu-Káncchi, and the northern portion is called Siva-Káncchi, inhabited by the worshippers of Vishnu and Siva, respectively. Sankarácharya died at Káncchipura, and at Siva-Káncchi exists his tomb or Samádhi with his statue upon it.

KÁNTIPURI Identified by Cunningham with Kotwal, twenty miles north of Gwalior. According to others, it is one of the ancient names of Katmandu in Nepal. But the Vishnu Purán places it on the Ganges near Allahabad.

KÁNYAKUBJA Kanouj.

KÁRÁPATHA ... Karabagh on the Indus. It is mentioned in the Raghuvansa as the place where Lakshmana's son, Chandraketu, was placed as king by his uncle Ramachandra when he made a disposition of his kingdom before his death. It is the "Carabat" of Tavernier. But the distance he gives from Candahar does not tally with its actual distance from that place (Tavernier's Travels, Ball's Ed., Vol. I, p. 91).

on his expedition to Lanka (Ceylon)" J. A. S. B., Vol. XIV., p. 519. But this does not correctly identify the place. From the accounts of pilgrims, it appears that the ancient Kiskindhyá is still called by that name. It is a small hamlet situated on the north bank of the river Tungabhadra near Anagandi, about sixty miles to the north of Bellary (Balhari). About two miles to the south-west of Kiskindhyá is the Pampá-sarovara, and to the north-west of Pampá-sarovara is the Anjaná hill, where Hanumána was born. Ráma killed Báli, the brother of Sugriva, and gave the kingdom of Kiskindhyá to the latter.

KLISOBORAS (OF THE GREEKS) ...

Growse identifies it with Mahában, six miles to the south of Mathura on the opposite bank of the Jamuna (Mathura, p. 279).

KODANGALURA ... Cranganore, a town of Malabar.

KOIL Aligarh.

- KUKKUTAPÁDA-
GIRI .. Kurkihar, about three miles north-east of Wazirganj, which is fifteen miles east of Gaya (Grierson's Notes on the District of Gaya). The three hills situated about half a mile to the north of Kurkihar are said to have been the scene of some of the miracles of the Buddhist saint Mahá-Kasyapa and eventually of his death.
- KULINDA-DESA The district of Shaharanpur, north of Delhi.
- KULUTA ... The district of Kulu in the upper valley of the Beas river. Its capital was Nagarkot.
- KUMÁRASWÁMI. This is a celebrated place of pilgrimage. The temple of Kumáraswámi or Kárttikaswami is one hundred and twenty miles to the south-east of Tripati in the province of Madras. It was visited by Sankaráchárya (Sankaravijaya).
- KUMÁRI ... Cape Comorin.
- KUNDINAPURA ... The ancient capital of Vidarbha. Dowson identifies it with Kundapura, about forty miles east of Amaravati (Classical Dic., p. 355). It existed at the time of Bhavabhuti (Málati-Mádhava).

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

It was the birth-place of Rukmini, wife of Krishna. It has been identified with Kondavir in Berar (Dr. Führer's Monumental Antiquities and Inscriptions). Kundinapura was also called Vidarbhapura (Harivansa).

KUNTALA-DESA

The ancient name of the province in which Curugode is situated : part of the Bellari district.

KUNTI-BHOJA ...

An ancient town of Malwa, the birth-place of Kunti, the mother of Yudhishthira and his brothers. It was situated on the bank of a small river called Aswanadi or Aswarathanadi, which falls into the river Chambal (R. K. Roy's Mahābhārata).

KURUJĀNGALA ...

A forest country situated in Sirhind, north-west of Hastinapura. It was called Srikantha-desa during the Buddhist period ; its capital was Bilaspur. It was included in Kurukshetra.

KURUKSHETRA...

Thaneswar. The district formerly included Sonapat, Amin and Panipat. The war between the Kurus and the Pándavas took place not only at Thaneswar, but also in the country around it. The Dwaipáyana-Hrada is situated at Thaneswar. At Amin, Abhimanyu, the son of Arjuna, was killed, and Aswathamá was defeated by Arjuna and his skull was severed. Amin, according to Cunningham, is the contraction of Abhimanyu-khera. Sonapat and Panipat are the corruptions of KUTIKÁ ...	The Kosila, the eastern tributary of the river Rámagangá in Oudh (N. C. Das).

KUTIKOSHTIKÁ	The Koh, a small affluent of the Rámagangá in Oudh (N. C. Das).

L

LÁKSHMANÁ-VATI ...	Laknauti is the corruption of Lákshmanávati. It was another name of Gour, the ruins of which lie near Malda. Hunter considers that the name of Gour was more applicable to the kingdom than to the city (Stat. Acct. of Bengal , Vol. VII, p. 51).
LAMPÁKÁ ...	Lamghan, on the northern bank of the Kábul river.
LANKÁ ...	1. Ceylon 2. A mountain on the south-east corner of Ceylon : it is described as three-peaked in the Rámáyana : it was the abode of Rávana (Beal). There is a place called Nikumbhilá, about forty miles from Colombo, where Indrajita performed his sacrifice (Buddhist Text Society's Journal , Vol. III, Pt. I, Ap.).
LAVAPURA	Called also Lavakota or Lavavára. Lahore, founded by Lava, the son of Rámachandra. The ruins of the ancient city still exist near the present city of Lahore.

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
LÁNGULI The river Looni in Rajputana.
LÁTA Guzerát. A writer in the Sádhana identifies it with a portion of the kingdom of Kanouj. It was also called Lára.
LILÁJAN The river Phalgu; but, in fact, the western branch of the river Phalgu, which joins the Mohána few miles above Gaya, is called by that name.
LOHA	... Afghanistan (Mahábhárat).
LOHITYA	... 1. The river Brahmaputra. 2. A portion of the river Brahmaputra is called by this name. Parasurama's axe fell from his hand when he bathed in this river, the axe having got fixed to his hand owing to the sin of killing his mother.
LOMASA-ÁSRAMA	The Lomasgir-hill, four miles north-east of Rajauli in the subdivision of Nowadah, in the district of Gaya: it was the hermitage of Lomasa Rishi (Grier-son)

M

MACHHERI	... Alwar, which formerly appertained to the territory of Jeypore (see Matsya-desá).
MADHUMATĪ	... The Mohwar or Modhwar river which rises near Ranod and falls into the Sindh, about eight miles above Sonari in Malwa (Málati-Mádhava , Act IX).

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
MADHUPURI	... Mathura : it was founded by Satrughanā, the youngest brother of Rāma, by killing the Rákshasa Lavana, son of Madhu. The town of the demon Madhu has been identified by Growse with Maholi, five miles to the south-west of the present town of Mathura. In Maholi is situated Madhu-vana (or forest of Madhu), a place of pilgrimage.
MADHYADESA	.. The country between Thaneswara and Allahabad.
MADHYÁRJUNA	Sixteen miles west of Tranquebar.
MADRA	... A country in the Panjab between the Ravi and the Chenab. Its capital was Sákala. Madra was the kingdom of Rájá Salya of the Mahábhárat. Some suppose that Madra was also called Bálhika.
MAGADHA	... The province of Behar. Its western boundary was the river Sone. The ancient capital of Magadha was Girivrajapura (modern Rajgir) at the time of Jarásandha, who was killed by Bhima, one of the five Pándavas. The capital was subsequently removed to Pátaliputra, which was formerly an insignificant village called by the name of Pátaligrāma, enlarged and strengthened by Ajátasatru, king of Magadha and contemporary of Buddha, to repel the advance of the Vrijjis of Vaisali. Udayáswa, the grandson of Ajátasatru, is said to have removed his capital from Rajgriha to Pátaliputra (Váyu Purán). At one period, the country of Magadha extended south of the Ganges from Benares to Monghir, and southwards as far as Singbhum (Hunter's Statistical Account of Bengal, Vol. XII, p. 65). The people of the neighbouring districts still call the districts of Patna and Gaya by the name of Magá, which is a corruption of Magadha.

MAHÁKAUSIKA It is formed by the seven Kosis of Nepal, which are the Milamchi, the Sun Kosi or the Bhotia Kosi, the Tamba Kosi, the Likhu Kosi, the Dud Kosi, the Arun and the Tamor. The union of the Tamor, the Arun and the Sun Kosi forms the Triveni, a holy place of pilgrimage. The Triveni is immediately above Baráha-Kshetra in Purnea above Náthpur, as the point where or close to which the united Kosis issue into the plains.

MAHÁNADI ... 1. The Phalgu river in the district of Gayá. 2. A river in Orissa.

MAHÁSÁRA ... Masár, a village six miles to the west of Arrah, visited by Hiuen Tsiang in the seventh century.

MAHENDRA ... 1. The Mahendra Mali hills in Ganjam and the Eastern Ghâts were known by the name of Mahendra-parvata, where Parasurâma retired after he was defeated by Râma. The Râmâyana and the Chaitanya charitâmrita apply the name specially to the Eastern Ghâts. 2. Mahi on the Malabar coast.

MAHODADHI ...	The Bay of Bengal (Raghuwansa).
MAHODAYA ...	Kánouj.
MAHOTSAVA- NAGARA ...	Mahoba in Bundelkhand.
MAINÁKA-GIRI ...	The Sewalik range.
MAKULA- PARVATA ...	The Kaluhá-páhár, which is about twenty-six miles to the south of Buddha-Gayá and about sixteen miles to the north of Chátrá in the district of Hazaribagh, is evidently a corruption of the name of the Makula Parvata of the Burmese annals of Buddhism (see Bigandet's Life or Legend of Gaudama). Buddha is said to have passed his sixth Wasso (or rainy-season retirement) on the Makula mountain. It forms the western boundary of a secluded valley on the eastern bank of the Lilájan river, containing a temple of Durgá called Kuleswari (Kula and Iswari). But the place abounds with Buddhist architectural remains and figures of Buddha. On a plateau just in front of the hill on which Kuleswari's temple is situated, and on the eastern side of a ravine which separates the plateau from the hill, is a temple which contains a broken image of Buddha in the conventional form of meditation. There are also two impressions of Buddha's feet on the top of the highest peak of a hill on the northern side of the valley called the Akásalochana, and figures of Buddha carved in the central part of the hill with inscriptions which have become much obliterated by time and exposure. The large bricks found at this hill also attest to the antiquity of the place. The letter, "Ma" of Makula must have dropped down by lapse of time, and kula was corrupted into kaluha. There can be no doubt that the Brahmins appropriated this sacred place of the Buddhists and set up the image of Durgá at a subsequent period after the expulsion of Buddhism.

MALADA ... The western portion of the district of Shahabad.

MALAYA-GIRI ... The southern part of the Western Ghâts, south of the river Kaveri (Bhava-bhuti's Mahāvira-charita).

MALAYÁLAM ... Malábar.

MALLA-DESA ... 1. The district of Multan was the ancient Malla-desa, the people of which were called Mallis by Alexander's historians. Its capital was Multan (Cunningham). Lakshman's son, Angada, was made king of Malla-desa by his uncle Rámachandra. 2. The country in which the Párasnáth hills are situated (Yule), that is, portions of the districts of Hazaribagh and Manbhum. The Puráns mention two countries by the name Malla, one in the west and the other in the east.

MANDÁKINI	... 1. The Kali-gangá, which rises in the mountains of Kedár. 2. The Paisuni (Payaswini) in Bundelkhand, which flows by the side of Mount Chitrakuta.
MANDÁRA-GIRI...	A hill situated in the Banka subdivision of the district of Bhágalpur, two or three miles from Bansi. It contains a groove around it in the middle. The gods are said to have churned the ocean with this hill as a churner. There are two temples on the top of the hill, one containing representations of six human feet, and the other contained an image of Vishnu called Madhusudana, but it is now empty. There are extensive ruins scattered about the foot of the hill for above two miles, of the time of the Chole Rájás, especially of Rájá Chatra Singh, who lived before the time of the Mahomedans (Martin's Eastern India , Vol. II). For its sanctity see Skanda Purán .
MANGALA	... Called also Mangali, the capital of Udyána, identified by Cunningham with Mangora or Manglora.
MANGIPATTANA	Balabhi or Dhank, the ancient capital of Sauráshtra or Guzerát, ten miles north-west of Bhaonagar. It was destroyed in the sixth century at the time of Siláditya (Tod).

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

MANIPURA ... It was the capital of Kalinga, the kingdom of Bubruváhana of the Mahábhárat. R. K. Roy in his Mahábhárat (Aswamedha Parva), places it to the south of Chikakole. But the situation of the capital of Kalinga, as described in the Mahábhárat and the Raghuvansa, and also the name, accord with those of Mánikapattana, a seaport at the mouth of the Chilka lake.

MARUDBRIDDHA The Rávi.

MARUSTHALI ... The great desert east of Sindh.

MATHURA ... 1. The capital of Surasena. It was the birth-place of Krishna. At a place called Janma-bhumi or Kárágárh on the margin of the Potara-kund tank near the temple of Kesava Deva, he was born ; in the adjoining suburb called Malla-pura, he fought with the two wrestlers, Chánura and Mushtika ; at Kubjá's well he cured Kubjá of her hump ; at Kansa-ka-Tilá outside the south gate of the present city, he killed Kansa ; and at Bisráma Ghát he rested himself after his victory. The Jog-ghát marks the spot where Kansa is said to have dashed Máyá or Joganidrá to the ground. Mathura was the hermitage of Dhruva : near Dhruva-ghát there is a temple dedicated to him. Growse identifies the Kankáli Tilá near the Kátra with the monastery of Upagupta visited by Hiuen Tsiang, the temple of Bhuteswara with the stupa of Sáriputra, the Jamalpur mound with the monkey-stupa, and the Yasa Vihára with the temple of Kesava Deva which has been graphically described by Tavernier as the temple of " Rám Rám " before its destruction by Aurangzebe in 1669. Mathura was also called Madhupuri (present Maholi, five miles to the south-west of the modern city), the abode of Madhu, whose son Lavana was killed by Satrugana, the brother of Rámachandra, who founded the present city (Growse's Mathura). 2. Madura, the capital of Pándya, in the province of Madras : it is said to have been founded by Kula Sekhara. It was called Dakshina-Mathura by way of contradistinction to Mathura of the N. W. Provinces.

MATIPURA ... Madáwar or Mundore in Western Rohilkhand, eight miles north of Bijnor.

MATSYA-DESA ... The country around Jeypur. It was the kingdom of Rájá Viráta of the Mahábhárata, in whose court at Vairát Yudhishtira and his brothers resided incognito for one year during the last year of their banishment. Váirát or Bairát is in the Alwar state of Rajputana. Machheri, which is a corruption of Matsya, is the present town of Alwar, which formerly appertained to the territory of Jeypur.

MÁHISHAKA	... Mysore.
MÁHISMATI	... Maheswara or Mahes on the right bank of the Nerbuda, forty miles to the south of Indore. It was the capital of Haihaya or Anupadesa, the kingdom of the myriad-handed Kártya-vyárjuna of the Puráns.
MÁLAVA	... Malwa, its capital was Dhárá-nagara at the time of Rájá Bhoja. (See Avanti).
MÁLINI	... 1. Champánagar near Bhágalpur. 2. The river Mandákini (Prakriti-váda). 3. The river Málini flows between the countries called Pralamba on the west and Apartala on the east, and falls into the river Ghagra about fifty miles above Ajodhyá. It is the Erineses of Megasthenes. The hermitage of Kanwa, the adoptive father of the celebrated Sakuntalá, was situated on the bank of this river. Griffith says its present name is Chuka, a branch of the Saraju.
MÁLYAVÁNA-GIRI	The Eastern Gháts.

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

- MÁNASA ... Lake Manasarovar, situated in Undes or Hundesa. It has been graphically described by Moorcroft in the Asiatic Researches, Vol. XII, p. 375. According to his estimate, it is fifteen miles in length (east to west) by eleven miles in breadth (north to south). It cannot be marched round in less than twenty-five days.
- MÁNIKAPURA ... Manikalya in the Punjab, celebrated for the Buddhist topes, where Buddha in a former birth gave his body to feed a starving tiger.
- MÁNYAKSHETRA Malkhead on the river Krishna.
- MÁRKANDA-
ÁSRAMA ... At the confluence of the Saraju and the Gomati near Bágeswara in the district of Kumanu. Márkanda Rishi performed asceticism at this place.
- MÁYÁPURI .. It included Hardwar, Máyápur and Kankhala. Kankhala is two miles from Hardwar: it was here that the celebrated Daksha-yajna of the Puráns took place, and Sati, the daughter of Daksha, sacrificed her life, unable to bear the insult put upon her husband Mahádeva by her father. The present Máyápur is situated between Hardwar and Kankhala. Pilgrims from all parts of India go to bathe at the Brahmakunda in the ghát called Har-ki-pairi at Hardwar. In a temple behind the temple of Daksheswara Mahádeo at Kankhala, the Yajna-Kunda, where Sati immolated herself, is still pointed out.

MUDGA-GIRI ... Monghir (see Mudgala-giri).

MUDGALA-GIRI Monghir. Mudgalaputra, a disciple of Buddha, converted Srutavinsatikoti, a rich merchant of this place, into Buddhism. The Kashtahârini Ghât at Monghir derives its sanctity from Râma having bathed in this ghât to expiate his sin for having killed Râvana, who, though a râkshasa, was nevertheless a Brâhman (Kurma Puran). Râmachandra is also said to have expiated his sin of slaying Râvana by bathing at a sacred tank at Hattia Haran, twenty-eight miles south-east of Hardoi in Oudh, and also in the river Gumti at Dhopâp, eighteen miles south-east of Sultanpur in Oudh (Führer).

MUKTAVENI ... Triveni, north of Hugli. Muktaveni is used by way of contradistinction to Yuktaveni or Allahabad, where the three rivers Gangâ, Jamunâ, and Saraswati unite and flow together ; at Muktaveni the three rivers separate and flow in different directions.

MUKTINÁTHA ... A celebrated temple of Nárâyana situated in Thibet in the Sapta Gandaki range of the Himalaya, not far from the source of the Gandak.

NYSA ... Nysatta on the northern bank of the Kábul river about two leagues below Hashtnagar (St. Martin).

O

ODRA ... Orissa.

OMKÁRANÁTHA ... Same as Amareswara.

P

PADMAKSHETRA Kanárák, called the Black Pagoda, nineteen miles north-west of Puri in Orissa. It contains a temple of the sun (Surya), said to have been established by Sámba, a son of Krishna, who was cured here of leprosy by the god. According to some account, he was cured at Multan (see Mulasthānapura). It appears, however, that this temple was built by Lánguliyá Narsinh, the seventh king of the Gangávansi dynasty, who reigned from 1237 to 1282 A. D. (Hunter's Orissa).

PADMAPURA Same as Padmāvati: it was the birth-place of Bhavabhuti.

PADMÁVATI It has been identified by Cunningham with Narwar or Nalapura (Archæological Report, Vol. III). But this identification does not appear to be correct. The town was situated at the confluence of the rivers Sindhu (Sindh) and Pára (Párvati) in Vidarbha (Málati-Mádhava, Act IV), and therefore it may be safely identified with Vijayanagar, which is a corruption of Vidyánagara, Padmávati being celebrated as a place of learning, especially for its teaching in logic, in the eighth century at the time of Bhavabhuti, who was born at this place (Máhaviracharita and Málati Mádhava).

PAMPÁ

... A branch of the river Tungabhadrá: it rises in the Rishyamukha mountain which is eight miles from the Anagandi hills, where Ráma met Hanumána and Sugriva for the first time. Near it is a lake called Pampásarovara (Wilson).

PANCHA-

DRÁVIDA

... Drávida, Karnáta, Guzerát, Maháráshtra and Tailanga (Wilson).

PANCHA-GANGÁ

The five Gangás are Bhágirathi (Ganges), Gomati (Godávári), Krishnaveni (Krishná), Pinákini (Pennar), and Káveri.

PANCHA-KEDÁRA

The temples of Kedáranáth, Tunganáth, Rudranáth, Madhyameswara, and Kalpeswara,—all situated along the Himalayan chain,—form a peculiar object of pilgrimage, and they are collectively called Pancha-Kedára. Mahádeo, in the form of Sadásiva, fled from Arjuna, one of the five Pándavas, and took refuge at Kedáranáth in the shape of a buffalo, but finding himself hard pressed, dived into the ground, leaving his hinderparts on the surface, still an object of adoration here. The remaining portions of the god are worshipped at four other places : the arms (báhu) at Tunganáth, the face (mukha) at Rudranáth, the belly (nábhi) at Madhyameswara, and the hair (jatá) and head at Kalpeswara (Führer).

PANCHA-NADA ... The Panjab,—the country of five rivers called Satadru, Vipásá, Irávati, Chandrabhágá and Vitastá.

PANCHÁPSARÁ-TIRTHA ... In the district of Udayapur, one of the tributary states in the Chhota-Nagpur division. Kapu, Bandhanpur, Banjiamba and Ponri are supposed to be on the site of the Panchápsará lake of the Rámáyana.

PANCHA-PRAYÁGA ... (1) Devaprayága at the confluence of the Bhágirathi and the Alakánandá ; (2) Karnaprayága at the confluence of the Alakánandá and the Pindar river ; (3) Rudraprayága at the confluence of the Alakánandá and the Káligangá (Mandákini) ; (4) Nandaprayága at the confluence of the Alakánandá and the Mandákini, a small river ; (5) Vishunprayága at the confluence of the Alakánandá and the Dauli (Dudgangá).

PANCHA-TIRTHA 1. A collective name given to five pools, or basins of water, situated between two hills on the west of Hardwar : their names are Amrita-kunda, Tapta-kunda, Ráma-kunda, Sitá-kunda, and Surya-kunda. 2. A place of pilgrimage in the province of Madras, mentioned in the Mahàbhárat : it was visited by Arjuna.

PANCHAVATI ...	Nasik on the Godavari, where Ráma dwelt with Lakshmana and Sitá during his exile; it was here that Sitá was abducted by Rávana, king of Lanká. The Chaitya cave at Nasik is supposed by Fergusson to belong to the second and third centuries of the Christian era.
PARASURÁMA-KSHETRA ...	Koncan (see Surpáráka-tirtha).
PARASURÁMA-PURA ...	Twelve miles south-east of Patti in the district of Pratapgarh in Oudh. It is one of the 52 Pithas where a portion of Sati's body is said to have fallen.
PARNÁSÁ ...	The river Banas in Rajputana : a tributary of the Chambal.
PARUSHNI ...	The river Rávi (Irávati) in the Panjab.
PARVATA ...	A country in the Panjab, between the Rávi and the Sutlej.
PASUPATINÁTHA	A celebrated temple of Mahádeo in Nepal, associated with the story of the fowler and the god : it is said that the fowler obtained the boon of salvation from Mahádeo at this place as the drippings of blood from his bag of game fell upon the head of the latter.
PATALA ...	Tatta in Sindh, mentioned in the Periplus of the Erythrean Sea . Cunningham identifies it with Hyderabad in Sindh.
PAYOSHNI ...	The river Purná, one of the branches of the Tapti in Berar.

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

PÁNCHÁLA	...	Rohilkhand. Páñchála was divided into North and South Páñchála: the capital of the former was Ahichhatra, and the capital of the latter was Kampilya. South Páñchála was the kingdom of Rájá Drupada, whose daughter Draupadi was married to the five Pándavas.
PÁNDU	...	Same as Pándya .
PÁNDUPURA	...	Pánderpur on the river Bhimarathi or Bhima in the district of Sholapur in the province of Bombay. It contains the celebrated temple of Bithoba Deva or Bithalnáth, an image of Krishna. It was visited by Chaitanya.
PÁNDYA	...	The modern districts of Tinnivelly and Madura. Its capitals at different periods were Uragapura (modern Negapatam) and Mathura (modern Madura). Pandion, a king of Pándya, is said to have sent an embassy to Augustus Cæsar at Rome in 27 B. C. (Gibbon).
PÁNIPRASTHA	...	Panipat, one of the five villages demanded by Yudhishthira from Durjodhana (see Kurukshetra).
PÁRASYA	...	Persia: its chief town, according to Hiuen Tsiang, was Surasthána.

PÁRÁVATI	...	Same as Párá

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
PÁRIPÁTRA ...	The western part of the Vindhya range extending from the source of the Nerbuda to the Gulf of Cambay. It included the Aravali mountains.
PÁRIYÁTRA ...	Same as Páripátra .
PÁRVATI-KSHETRA ...	Same as Birajū .
PÁTALÁVATI	The Kali-Scind, a branch of the Chambal, mentioned by Bhavabhuti in his Málati-Mádhava . It is called Palaitah by Tod.
PÁTALIPUTRA ...	Patna, built by Ajátasatru, king of Magadha and contemporary of Buddha, for the purpose of repelling the attacks of the Vrijjis of Vaisali (Besarh). The old capital of Magadha was Girivrajapura or Rajgir, but it was subsequently removed to Pátaliputra by Udayáswa, the grandson of Ajátasatru. A very small portion of the modern town of Patna is on the site of the ancient Pátaliputra, the greater portion of which was diluviated by the rivers Ganges and Sone in 750 A. D. It was the birth-place of Árya Bhatta, the celebrated Hindu astronomer. Several Hindu sages, as Kátyáyana and Chánakya, flourished in this place. A graphic description of the town has been given by Megasthenes, who was sent as an ambassador by Seleucus Nicator to the court of Chandragupta, king of Magadha, who reigned from 320 to 290 B. C. He

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

PRATISTHÁNA ...

1. Bithoor, where the remains of a fort, which is said to have been the fort of Rájá Uttánápáda, still exist. The celebrated Dhruva was the son of Uttánápáda: he was born at this place: he performed asceticism in the forests of Mathura. 2. There was another town of that name in the Deccan now called Pattana or Mangila-Pattana, thirty-eight miles south-west of Aurangabad: it was the capital of Rájá Sáliváhana. 3. Paithana: it was once a great emporium of commerce in the Andhra country, described by Pliny. 4. Jhusi, opposite to Allahabad, across the Ganges: it is still called Pratisthápur. It was the capital of Rájá Puraravas.

PRAYÁGA

... Allahabad The celebrated Akshaya Vata or the undecaying banyan tree, which is still an object of worship, and which is now situated within a dark subterranean chamber in the fort at Allahabad, is thus described by Hiuen Tsiang, who visited India in the seventh century: "In the city there is a Deva temple beautifully ornamented and celebrated for its numerous miracles. According to their records, this place is a noted one for all living things to acquire religious merit." He further says: "Before the hall of the temple there is a great tree with spreading boughs and branches, and casting a deep shadow. There was a body-eating demon here, who, depending on this custom (viz., of committing

On the bank of a small stream called Thorá, near its junction with the Ganges, on the western side of Buxar, is a small mound of earth which is worshipped as the birth-place of Vámana Deva (Rámáyana and Brahmánda Purán). A fair is held here every year in the month of Bhádra in honor of Vámana Deva. A fair is also held in honor of Vámana Deva at Fatwa, situated at the confluence of the Ganges and the Punpun, in the district of Patna, where large numbers of people bathe on a festival called Bárani Dawádasi. 2. The hermitage of Suta on the bank of the Achchhoda-saroavara in Kásmir (see Achchhoda-sarovara).

SINDHU ... 1. The river Indus. 2. Sindh. 3. The river Sindh in Malwa called Dakshina Sindhu in the Mahábhárat. The name of India (Intu of Hiuen Tsiang) is a corruption of Sindhu or Sapta Sindhu (the Hafta Hindu of the Arabs).

SINHALA ... Ceylon. The Dipavansa relates the conquest of the island by Vijaya, who came from Lála or Guzerát (in 483 B. C.)

SINHAPURA ... It has been identified by Cunningham with Katas or Katáksha, which is sixteen miles from Pindi Dadan Khan on the north side of the Salt range in the Panjab. According to Hiuen Tsiang, the country of Sinhapura bordered on the Indus on its western side : it was a dependency of Kásmir in the seventh century. It was conquered by Arjuna.

SIPRÁ	...	The river on which Ougein stands.
SITADRU	...	The river Sutlej.
SITÁ	...	The river Yarkand or Zarafshan on which the town of Yarkand is situated.
SITÁPRASTHA	...	The river Dhabalá (see Báhudá).
SIVISTHÁNA	...	Sawan on the right bank of the Indus.
SOMA-PARVATA	1.	The Amarkantaka mountain in which the river Nerbuda has got its source (Amara-kosha). 2. The southern part of the Hala range along the Lower Valley of the Indus (Rámáyana).
SOMA-TIRTHA...		Prabhása (see Prabhása).
SOMESWARA-GIRI		The mountain in which the river Bángangá has got its source.
SONAPRASTHA	...	Sonepat (see Kurukshetra).
SONÁ	...	The river Sone : it was the western boundary of Magadha. It formerly joined the Ganges a little above Bankipur, the western suburb of Patna, from which its embouchure is now sixteen miles distant and higher up the Ganges (McCrindle).
SONITAPURA	...	The ancient Sonitapura is still called by that name, and is situated in Gárwal on the bank of the river Kedár-Gangá or Mandákini, about six miles from Ushámat, and at a short distance from Gupta-Kasi. Ushámat is on the north of Rudra-Prayága, and is on the road from Haridwar to Kedárnáth. A dilapidated fort still exists at Sonitpur on the top of a mountain, and is called the fort of Rájá Vána. Sonitapura was the capital of Vána Rájá, whose daughter Ushá was abducted by Aniruddha, the grandson of Krishna (Harivansa). Dr. Führer says that Kotalgarrh in the district of Kumaon is pointed out as the stronghold of Vánásura.

A ruined fort situated at Damdamá on the bank of the river Punarbhavá fourteen miles to the south of Dinajpur, is called "Vána Rájá's garh," and it is said to have been the abode of Rájá Vána, whence they say Ushá was abducted by Aniruddha, and various arguments are brought in to prove this assertion. But the route of Krishna from Dwáriká to Sonitapura as given in the Harivansa, and the description of the place as being situated on a mountain, do not support the theory that Damdamá was the ancient Sonitapura. An inscription found in the fort proves that it was built by a king of Gour of the Kámboja dynasty. Vána Rájá's fort in the district of Dinajpur is as much a myth as the Uttara-gogriha (northern cowshed) of Rájá Viráta at Kántanagar in the same district. The Assamese also claim Tejpur as the ancient Sonitapura.

SRÁVASTI	... Sáhet-Máhet. On the southern bank of the river Rápti (Irávati): it was the capital of Uttara-Kosala, fifty-eight miles north of Ajodhyá (Rámáyana). It was the Savatthipura of the Buddhists. Buddha resided here for twenty-five years.
SRIKANTHA	... Same as Kurujāngala . Its capital was Biláspur, thirty-three miles north-west of Sáharanpur.
SRIKSHETRA	.. Puri in Orissa. Ananga Bhima Deo of the Gangá dynasty built the temple of Jagannáth in 1198 A. D. He reigned between 1175 and 1202 A. D. The Gangávansi kings reigned in Orissa, after the Kesari kings, from 1132 to 1534 A. D.; the first king of the dynasty was Chorgangá and the last king was a son of Pratápa Rudra Deva, who died in 1532, and who was a contemporary of Chaitanya (Hunter's Orissa). The temple of Bimalá at Puri is one of the 52 Pithas, where a fragment of Sati's body is said to have fallen.
SRINAGARA The capital of Kásmir built by Rájá Pravarasena about the beginning of the sixth century of the Christian era.
SRINGAVERA- PURA Singraur on the river Ganges, eighteen miles north-west of Allahabad. It was the residence of Guhaka Nisháda, who was the friend of Dasaratha and Ráma.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

SUKARA-

KSHETRA

... Soron, twenty seven miles north-east of Itah in the Itah district, where Hiran-yáksha was slain by Vishnu in his incarnation as Varáha (boar). It contains a temple of Varáha-Lakshmi. Tulsi Dás, the celebrated Hindi poet, was reared up at this place during his infancy when he was deserted by his parents.

SUKTIMÁNA-

PARVATA

... That portion of the Vindhya range which joins the Páripátra and the Riksha-parvata, including the hills of Bindhyáchal in the district of Mirzapur.

SUKTIMATI

... 1. The river Suvarnarekhá in Orissa.
2. The river Betwá in Malwa, which flows through the ancient kingdom of Chedi (Chanderi).

SULAKSHINI

... The river Chandrávati or Goga which falls into the Ganges.

SUMANA-KUTA

... Adam's Peak in Ceylon (Monier Williams).

SUMERU-

PARVATA

... The Rudra-Himalaya where the river Ganges has got its source. It is also called Pancha-Parvata from its five peaks: Rudra-Himalaya, Vishnupuri, Brahmapuri, Udgaríkantha, and Swargárohini. Four of the five Pándavas died at the last mountain (see Gangotri).

SUMHA

... Sumha has been identified by some authors with Arracan; but it appears from the sixth chapter of Dasakumáracharita that Dámalipta was the principal town of Sumha, and according to the Hemakosha, Dámalipta was another name of Támralipta or Támalipta (Tamluk). Hence Sumha was the country of Támralipta. There was another country by the name of Sumha in the Panjáb conquered by Arjuna.

SUNDHA-DESA ... Tipará and Arracan.

SURASENA ... The kingdom of which Mathura was the capital.

SURÁSHTRA ... 1. Guzerát (see Sauráshtra). 2. Surat.

SURPÁRAKA ... It has been identified by Cunningham with Surat. Dr R. L. Mitra identifies Surpárika of the Buddhist period with Sipeler (Sippára of Ptolemy), a seaport near the mouth of the Krishna (Lalita-vistara). But the Chaitanya-charitámrita places it to the south of Kolhapur. McCrindle places it (Soupara) about one hundred miles to the south of Surat near Paum in his map of Ancient India.

SURYANAGARA Srinagar in Kásmir. The Mahomedans changed the name into Srinagar (Bernier's Travels, Constable's Ed., p. 397, note).

SURYAPURA ... Surát (J. A. S. B., Vol. VI, p. 387, J. Prinsep).

SUSHOMÁ ... The river Sindh in the Panjáb.

SUSHUNI .. The Rajmahal hills in Bengal.

SUARNABHUMI Burma (Beal). But Fergusson identifies it with Thatun on the Sitang river, forty miles north of Martaban : it was the Golden Chersonese of the classical geographers. The Maháwanso relates that after the third Buddhist synod in 246 B.C., Asoka despatched two missionaries, Sono and Uttaro, to Subarna-bhumi for proselytising the land.

SUARNAGRÁMA Sonárgáon in Vikrampur in the district of Dacca, situated on the opposite side of Munshigunge, on the river Dhaleswari.

SUVÁMÁ ... The river Rámangá in Oudh and Rohilkhand.

SUVÁSTU ... 1. The Swat river,—the Suastos of the Greeks. Pushkarávati or Pushkalávati, the capital of Gándhára or Gandharvadesa, stood on this river near its junction with the Kabul river. 2. Swat. Buddhist writers included Swat in the country of Udyána. It was at Swat that Rájá Sibi of the Mahábhárat and the Sivi-játaka gave his own flesh to the hawk to save the dove.

SYANDIKA ... The river Sai, seven miles south of Jaunpur and twenty-five miles north of Benares (P. N. Ghosal's Travels).

T

TAILANGA ... Same as Telingana.

TAKKA-DESA ... Between the Vipásá and the Sindhu rivers : the Panjáb (Hiuen Tsiang). It was the country of the Báhikas (Rádí-tarangini).

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

TAKSHASILA	...	Taxila. General Cunningham places the site of the city near Shah-dheri, one mile north-east of Kála-ká-serai between Attock and Rawalpindi, where he found the ruins of a fortified city. St. Martin places it at Hasan-Abdul, eight miles north-west of Shah-dheri. It is said to have been founded by Taksha, the son of Bharat and nephew of Rámachandra. The Kathá-saritságara places it on the bank of the Vitastá (Jhelum).
TAMASÁ	...	The river Tonse between the Saraju and the Goomti, which, flowing through Azamgarh, falls into the Ganges. The bank of this river is associated with the early life of Válmiki, the author of the Rámdyana .
TANUSRI	...	Tenasserim, the southern division of the province of Lower Burma.
TAPANI	...	The river Tápti.
TATINI	...	The Chikako! river in the Circars.
TÁMASAVANA	...	It has been identified by Cunningham with Sultanpur in the Pánjab. Beal places it at the confluence of the Sutlej and the Beas. It was at the Támasavana convent that the fourth Buddhist synod was convened by Kaniksha under the presidency of Vasumitra (Beal's Introduction to Fa Hian). The date of this convention (78 A. D.) has given rise to the Saka era.
TÁMRALIPTA	...	Same as Támralipti .

TÁMRALIPTI	...	1. Tamluk on the river Selai, just above its junction with the river Hugli (Wilson). It formerly bordered on the sea. 2. South Bengal (R. C. Dutt).
TÁMRAPARNI	...	1. Ceylon of the Buddhists. 2. The river Támbraparni in Tinnevelly.
TÁPI	...	The river Tápti.
TELINGANA	...	The country between the Godávári and the Krishna, which is now the territory of the Nizam. McCrindle supposes that Telingana is a contraction of Tri-Kalingana or Tri-Kalinga (see Andhra).
TILAPRASTHA	...	Tilpat, six miles to the south-east of Toghlakabad, and ten miles to the south-east of the Kutab Minar. It was included within Indraprastha, the capital of Yudhishthira. Shaikh Faridi Bukhari built Faridábád near Delhi on the greater part of the old parganah of Tilpat (Blochmann's Ain-i-Akbari). It was one of the five villages demanded by Yudhishthira from Durjodhana.
TILODAKA	...	Tilará, a village on the east bank of the Phálgu, visited by Hiuen Tsiang, thirty-three miles to the south-west of Patna.
TIRABHUKTI	...	Tirhut (see Videha).
TIRTHAPURI	...	Twenty-one miles from Darchin in the Himalaya, on the bank of the Sutlej. Bhasmásura is said to have been killed at this place: a heap of ashes is pointed out as the remains of that Asura (Fraser). The place of Bhasmāsura's death is also pointed out in a cave situated in a hill near Sasiram in the district of Shahabad. Bhasmāsura obtained a boon from Mahādeva to the effect that whoever he would touch upon the head should at once be consumed to ashes. He wanted to try the efficacy of the boon by touching the head of Mahādeva himself, —the giver of the boon. Mahādeva fled, pursued by Bhasmāsura, and took the protection of Vishnu, who advised the Asura to make the experiment by placing his hand upon his own head instead of that of another. He followed the advice, and was at once consumed to ashes.

TRIGARTTA ... Jálándhar, a part of the district of Lahore, according to Wilson; but Wilford identifies the place with Tahora. Tahora or Tihora is situated on the river Sutlej, a few miles from Ludhiana, where excellent ruins were observed by Captain Wade (J. A. S. B., Vol. VI). Kangra is supposed by some to be the ancient Trigartta.

TRI-KALINGA ... Same as Telingana.

TRIMALLA ... Tirumala, six miles west of Tirupati or Tripati in the district of North Arcot. The celebrated temple of Báláji (Lakshmana) is situated on a mountain called Sesáchala. The Pápanásini-Gangá rises in this mountain.

URANJIRÁ	... The Vipásá (Beas).
URAVILWA	... Buddha-Gayá, six miles to the south of Gayá. It was here that Buddha attained Buddhahood, below the celebrated Pipal tree (Ficus religiosa), called also the Bodhi tree, immediately on the west of the temple, which was built between the fifth and the seventh centuries of the Christian era. Fergusson supposes that the temple was built by Amara Deva (the author of the Amara-kosha), who was one of the "nine gems" in the court of Vikramáditya who reigned in Malwa from 515 to 550 A. D. (History of Indian and Eastern Architecture , p. 69). The Muchilinda tank, now called Buddha-kunda, is situated to the south of the temple; and the place where Buddha walked up and down after attaining Buddhahood, is marked by a plastered parapet, now called Jagamohan, situated almost immediately on the north side of the temple. The temple faces east, and is one of the most graceful temples in India. Sákýá attained Buddhahood at the age of thirty-six in 522 B. C.
UTKALA	... Orissa.
UTPALÁRANYA	Bithoor, fourteen miles from Cawnpur, where the hermitage of Válmiki was situated. It was at this place that Sitá, the wife of Rámachandra, gave birth to Lava and Kusa. It is the site of the celebrated city called Pratishthána, which was ruled by Rájá Uttánapada, the father of

VÁLMIKI-
ÁSRAMA

... Bithoor, which was the hermitage of Rishi Válmiki, the author of the Rámáyana. Sitá, the wife of Rámachandra, lived at the hermitage during her exile, where she gave birth to the twin sons, Lava and Kusa. The temple erected in honor of Válmiki at the hermitage is situated on the bank of the Ganges. Sitá is said to have been landed by Lakshmana while conveying her to the hermitage at the Sati-ghát in Cawnpur. A large metallic arrow-head of a greenish colour is shown in a neighbouring temple at Bithoor, also situated on the bank of the Ganges, as the identical arrow with which Lava wounded his father, Rámachandra, in a fight for the aswa-medha horse: this arrow-head is said to have been discovered a few years ago in the bed of the river Ganges.

VÁRANÁVATA

... Barnáwá, nineteen miles north-west of Mirát, where an attempt was made by Duryodhana to burn the Pándavas (Führer).

VÁRÁNASI

... Benares. In the seventh century it was visited by the celebrated Chinese traveller Hiuen Tsiang. He has thus described the city and its presiding god Bisweswara: "In the capital there are twenty Deva temples, the towers and halls of which are of sculptured stone and carved wood. VIDEHA

... Tirhoot, the kingdom of Rájá Janaka, whose daughter Sitá was married by Rámachandra. Its other name was Mithilá. Mithilá was the name both of the country and the capital. Janakpur was the capital of Rájá Janaka. About a mile to the north of Sitámárho, there is a tank which is pointed out as the place where the new born Sitá was found by Janaka while he was ploughing the land. Panaura, three miles south-west of Sitámárho, also claims the honor of being the birth-place of Sitá. About six miles from Janakpur is a place called Dhenuká, now overgrown with jungles, where Rámachandra is said to have broken the bow of Hara. Videha was bounded on the east by the river Kausiki (Kusi), west by the river Gandaka, north by the Himalaya, and south by the Ganges.

VINDHYA-PÁDA

The Satpura range (Váyu Purán).

VINDHYÁCHALA

The Vindhya range. The celebrated temple of Vindubásini is situated on a part of the hills near Mirzapur : it is one of the stations of the E. I. Railway. The temple of Yogamáyá, which is one of the 52 Pithas, where the toe of Sati's left foot is said to have fallen, is at a short distance from the temple of Vindubásini. Yogamáyá, after she warned Kansa, king of Mathura, of the birth of Krishna, came back to the hills and took her abode at the site of the temple of Vindubásini. The town of Vindhyaála was included within the circuit of the ancient city of Pampápura (Führer).

VIPÁSA

... The Beas,—the Hyphasis of the Greeks. The origin of the name of this river is related in the Mahábhárat : Rishi Vasishtha, being weary of life on account of the death of his sons, who were killed by Viswámitra, tied his hands and feet with cords, and threw himself into the river, which, afraid of killing a Bráhmaṇa, burst his bond, and brought him to the shore.

ANCIENT NAMES.	MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.
VIRASARA	Bilsar, about twenty-two miles to the north of Sánkásya, where Buddha passed the twelfth wasso (varshá) or rainy-season retirement).
VIRÁTA	... Bairát, one hundred and five miles to the south-west of Delhi, and forty-one miles to the north of Jeypur (Cunningham). It was the capital of Viráta Rájá, king of Matsyadesa, where the five Pándavas lived in secrecy for one year. It is a mistake to identify Viráta with Dinájpur, where at Kántanagar Viráta's Uttara-gogriha (northern cowshed) is shown, the dakshina-gogriha (southern cowshed) being shown at Midnapur, as such identification is not countenanced by the Mahábhárat, which relates that Yudhishtira selected a kingdom in the neighbourhood of Hastinápura as his place of concealment, from which he could watch the movements of his enemy Duryodhana. See Matsyadesa .
VITASTÁ	... The river Jhelum,—the Hydaspes of the Greeks.
VISÁKHÁ	... Oudh was called by this name during the Buddhist period.
VISÁLA- CHHATRA	... Same as Visálá . Hájipur was included in the kingdom of Visálá. Rámachandra, Lakshmana and Viswámitra, on their way to Mithilá, are said to have halted at Hájipur on the site of the present temple, which contains the image of Rámachandra on the western side of the town. Háji Ilayas Shamsuddin, king of Bengal, established his capital at Hájipur in the middle of the fourteenth century, and from him the name of Hájipur is derived. The celebrated Rájá Toran Mal made it his residence when he made the settlement of Bengal and Behar. Sonpur, situated at the confluence of the Gandak and the Ganges, was also included in Visála-chhatra. It was at Sonpur that Vishnu is said to have released the elephant from the clutches of the alligator, the fight between whom has been described in the Mahábhárat. Rámachandra, on his way to Janakapura, is said to have raised a temple on the spot, and dedicated it to Mahádeo Harihara Náth, in honor of whom the celebrated fair is held every year (Hunter's Stat. Acct. of Bengal, Vol. XI, p. 262).

VISALÁ

... Besah, in the district of Mozaffarpur, the Vaisali of the Buddhist period (see Vaisali).

VISWÁMITRA-
ÁSRAMA

... Buxar in the district of Shahabad in Behar. It was the hermitage of Rishi Viswámitra, where Rámachandra is said to have killed the Rákshasi Táraká. The Charitra-vana at Buxar is said to have been the hermitage of the Rishi, and the western side of Buxar near the river Thorá was the ancient Siddhásrama, the reputed birthplace of Vámana Deva (see Siddhásrama). The hermitage of Rishi Viswámitra is also pointed out at Devakunda, twenty-five miles north-west of Gayá.

VRAJA

... Gokul, the water-side suburb of Mahábana—a village in the neighbourhood of Mathura across the Jamuna, where Krishna was reared by Nanda during his infancy. The name of Vraja was extended to Vrindávana and the neighbouring villages, the scene of Krishna's early life and love. The shrine of Syám Lálá is believed to mark the spot where Jasodá, the wife of Nanda, gave birth to Máya or Joga-nidrá, substituted by Basudeva for the infant Krishna. Outside the town is Puatná-khar, where Krishna is said to have killed Putaná. Growse identifies Mahábana with Klisoboras of the Greeks and supposes that the modern Vraja was the ancient Anupa-desa. Varsána was the birth-place of Rádhiká, the favourite Gopi of Krishna.

VRINDÁVANA

... Brindaban in the district of Mathura, the scene of Krishna's love with the Gopis. The original image of Govindaji was removed to Jeypur and that of Madanmohan to Karauli in anticipation of the raid of Aurangzebe. The old temple of Govindaji was built by Mán Singh in the thirty-fourth year of Akbar's reign (Growse).

VYÁSA-ÁSRAMA... Manal, a village near Badrináth in the Himalaya. It was the hermitage of Rishi

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

- VYÁSA-KÁSI ... Rámnagar, opposite to Benares across the Ganges. The temple dedicated to Váyasa Rishi is situated within the precincts of the palace of the Maharájá of Benares

Y

- YAMUNOTRI ... A spot in the Bándara-puchchha (monkey's tail) mountain in the Himalaya, where the river Jamuna has its source. It has reference solely to the sacred spot where the worship to the goddess Jamuna is performed. The Jamuna rises from several hot springs, and the spot for bathing is at the point where the cold and warm waters mingle and form a pool (see Kalinda-desá).
- YASAPURA ... Same as Yessavul.
- YASHTIVANA ... Jethian, about two miles north of Topoban in the district of Gaya (Grierson). It is also called Jaktiban (Cunningham). Buddha is said to have displayed many miracles at this place.
- YAVA-DWIPA .. The island of Java. It is said to have been colonised by a prince of Guzerát.
- YAYÁTIPURI ... Jajmaw, three miles from Cawnpur, where the ruins of a fort are pointed out as the remains of the fort of Rájá Yayáti (see Sákambhari). The temple of Siddhináth Mahádeo is at a short distance from the fort.

ANCIENT NAMES.

MODERN NAMES OR SITUATION.

YÁJNAPURA

... Jajpur in Orissa on the river Baitarani. It is said to have been founded by Rájá Yayáti Kesari in the sixth century. Jajpur is a contraction of Yayátipura (pronounced Jajátipura). It was the capital of the Kesari kings till the tenth century, when the seat of government was removed to Cuttak by Nripa Kesari. The temple of Birajá at Jajpur is one of the 52 Pithas where a part of Sati's body is said to have fallen.

YESSAVUL

... Ahmedabad was founded on the site of the ancient city of Yessavul by Ahmed Shah of Guzerát in 1412 (Thornton's Gazetteer). Yessavul is evidently a corruption of Yasapura (pronounced Jaspura). Ahmedabad was also anciently called Karnávati (Fergusson).

PREFACE.

For the plan of this work, I have been indebted to the suggestion of Mr. J. D. Cargill, C. S., Sub-Divisional Officer of Buxar, now District Magistrate of Noakhali. The present work will afford facility for finding out the ancient places from their modern names. I have taken this opportunity to make considerable additions both in the names and in the accounts of places, and to supply many omissions which occurred in my Geographical Dictionary of Ancient and Mediæval India : hence the present work may not be inappropriately called an Appendix to the Geographical Dictionary. The subject is so vast that it is not likely that full justice can be done to it by a single individual, and notwithstanding one's attempt to make much of the materials at hand, a work like this must necessarily remain incomplete. Many of the places mentioned in ancient Hindu and Buddhist works have not yet been identified, and most of them defy identification. My attempt in the Geographical Dictionary as well as in the present work, feeble as it may be, has been to make a systematic arrangement and collection of facts regarding ancient places which have been identified, in order to make them useful to the public as works of easy reference.

There are inscriptions also, but they have become obliterated and illegible. On the top of a hill on the western side there is a temple of Durgá called Kuleswari. All the images to be found in the place are the images of Buddha, except that of the goddess Kuleswari. Even the image which is called Bhaironáth is an image of Páraswanáth. There can be no doubt that the Brahmins appropriated this sacred place of the Buddhists and set up an image of Durgá at a subsequent period.
